Everybody accessing the venues must respect the measures, signs and established transit routes.

2.- Rules for exhibitors

During the trade fair, the stand is the space that represents the company, a place where customers are welcomed and accommodated, meetings held and presentations given, etc., meaning it is necessary to take into account the safety measures established by the authorities in the same way as in the workplace itself, with responsibility for the safety of employees, customers and visitors alike

a) CAPACITY AT THE STAND:

The control of the capacity at the stand is the responsibility of the Exhibitor, who must ensure that the required capacity conditions are respected according to its surface area, thus avoiding crowding.

This point applies both to the stand as a whole and to any enclosed space on it (meeting rooms, offices, etc.). It is essential that this aspect be taken into account on a permanent and special basis when giving presentations or performing activities that may involve a concentration of people.

It is recommended that staff are instructed in this regard and that information about capacity, both of the stand as a whole and of its rooms, is displayed in a visible place.

b) DISTRIBUTION OF LEAFLETS AND DOCUMENTS:

Leaflets, commercial documents and any other documentation handed out by exhibiting companies may only be distributed by authorised staff from the stand and only when the material is requested by the visitor. Until the material is handed out, it must be stored and accessible solely to the aforementioned personnel, who will hand it out pursuant to the hygiene and health and safety measures established in these regulations.

c) PUBLIC ASSISTANCE POSITIONS:

Public assistance positions must allow for an interpersonal safety distance and/or be protected with protective screens.

d) HYDROALCOHOLIC GEL:

Hand sanitiser must be made freely available for frequent use by both the staff manning the stand and those visiting it.

e) CATERING SERVICES:

- Any Exhibitors wishing to offer food or drink to their customers must set up a catering point at their stand, adapted to current regulations at the time of providing said service. Stand-up cocktail-type events associated with the trade fair activity are NOT allowed.

- Food and drink may only be consumed when sitting at the table or groups of tables, with the bar service not being permitted unless said space is used for eating or drinking while seated or for customers to collect food or drink.

- Tables or groups of tables must respect the proper safety distance (1.5 metres).

- In the spaces of the establishments where cinema, theater, tent circuses, multipurpose multipurpose rooms, and similar spaces take place, as well as outdoor venues and in other premises and establishments for public shows and recreational activities, in which the public attends the events standing up, the consumption of food and beverages will be done exclusively in the restaurant areas enabled for this purpose, which must be separated from the public area, and in which the general measures must be respected prevention and hygiene.

f) ADDITIONAL MEASURES FOR FREE DESIGN STANDS

When opting for a design stand, the Exhibitor must, in addition, incorporate the following recommendations regarding ventilation, circulation of personnel and access points into it:

- Reduce the number of enclosed spaces or, if there are any, ensure that they are open-topped to improve ventilation. IFEMA MADRID's exhibition halls have very high ceilings and this, combined with the HVAC system, means they are well ventilated.
- Depending on the size of the stand, the creation of marked transit routes is recommended to ensure that the movement of people on it takes place in accordance with the relevant safety measures to prevent crowding or the crossing of transit routes by establishing differentiated spaces and including entry and exit signs. (13.2)

The Exhibitor is responsible for the specific management and control of these flows with regard to possible delays that may occur while meeting the needs of those attending the trade fair and for guaranteeing minimum impact on communal areas and respect for the safety rules established for the event.

Contact the IFEMA MADRID security staff in the event of any incident that may arise in this regard (+34 91 722 5400)

3.- Specific rules and recommendations for external organisers:

The Promoter or Organiser of an Event is responsible for compliance with these safety measures, as well as for any others established in the current legislation.

Where there is a simultaneous participation of 1000 or more people at the Event, it will be considered a CROWDED EVENT, and the Organiser must submit a responsible declaration to the General Directorate of Public Health of the Ministry of Health stating, under its responsibility, that it complies with and will observe the current and applicable health prevention and control measures according to the nature of the event, attaching the Action Plan that includes the adoption and description of the preventive measures to be implemented for the performance of the activity.

These measures must be coordinated with those established for the IFEMA MADRID facilities.

To this end, the Promoter or Organiser must sign a Sworn Statement declaring that they will comply with the measures set out in the current regulations as well as with the IFEMA MADRID coordination measures set forth in the aforementioned statement along with any others that may be duly issued and notified at a later date by IFEMA MADRID staff.
